

9.1.) The interrupt vector is a predefined memory address, this address points to the interrupt service routine which holds the actual code to be executed